

TURN ON AND DROP IN (on your patients).

Thanks to the digital revolution, you can turn on a webcam and drop in on your patients — without wasting valuable time traveling to clinics. That's our philosophy. And we invite you to join our new Telepsychiatry Program in Northern California. Our psychiatrists earn close to $300,000 a year (including benefits) — and receive eight weeks a year of paid time off to enjoy with family and friends. Best of all, they can collect a retirement check after working as little as five years. To learn more about this great opportunity, call or text Dr. Greg Tarasoff at 415-488-7649, or email him today at CaliforniaTarasoff@gmail.com.

“My favorite reason I enjoy working here — I can focus on treating my patients. I can be focused solely on his mental health and nothing else. I can do exactly what I was trained to do, and be who I always wanted to be as a doctor for my patients. The fact that my job allows me to live in the greatest state in the nation is just a nice bonus.”

Dr. Greg Tarasoff is the Chief Psychiatrist of San Quentin’s Mental Health and Telepsychiatry Program.

Greg Tarasoff Talks About

The New Telepsychiatry Program in Northern California

Why Telepsychiatry?

Telepsychiatry is definitely where it is at. In the Telepsychiatry Program psychiatrists can see patients anywhere in the state using Telepresence. You will be working in an office in the San Francisco Bay Area or Sacramento, while your patient and his or her case manager will connect with you online, sometimes hundreds of miles away in a rural correctional facility, for medication management services. The greatest advantage of Telepsychiatry is that we can provide every patient with access to superior psychiatric services, no matter where he or she is living.

Describe correctional health care?

Working in corrections is pretty much like working in any small town. If you are practicing in the community, you already treat men and women who have been in jail or prison — they just didn’t advertise it when they walked in your office. Our patients have the same needs as patients in the community.

Who are you looking for?

We would love to get a great mix of doctors at different stages in their career. For those just starting out, join us, and you can build a financial base before you build a private practice. You never know, you may enjoy the job so much, you’ll want to build a career with us — many people have. If you are in the middle of a career, or even further along, and want a change, this is also a great job. If you’ve been around enough to know a great job when you see one, you’ll know this is it. My best guess is that once word gets out, we’ll fill up pretty quick with a very happy group of doctors.

What about work-life balance?

We care about your peace of mind: that’s why we give our doctors eight weeks a year of paid time off to spend with family and friends.

Why do you call this a dream job?

When you take a close look at the benefits of working for the state of California, and get a chance to live in the city of San Francisco or Sacramento — now that’s the very definition of a dream job.
